Rituals of Preparation

More than anything, this book is about preparation:

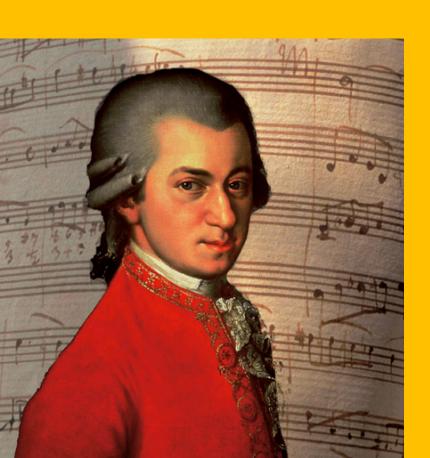

In order to be creative you have to know how to prepare to be creative.

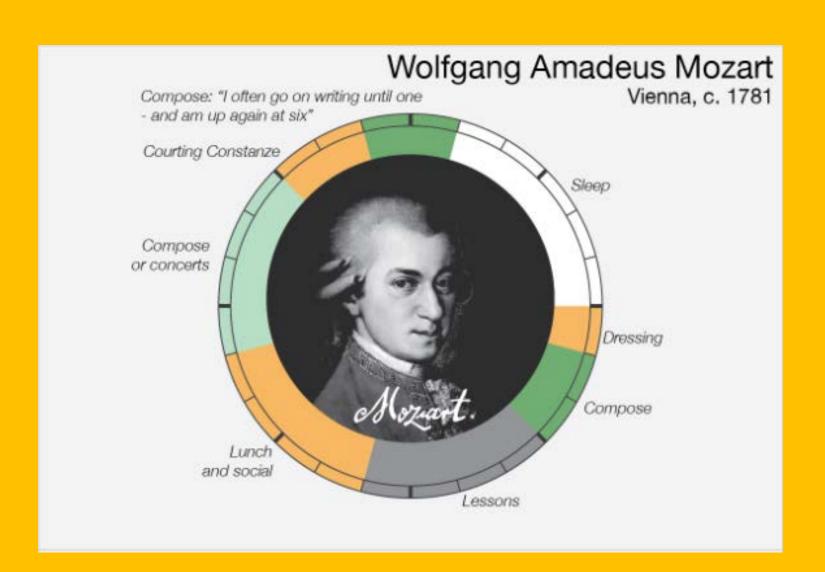

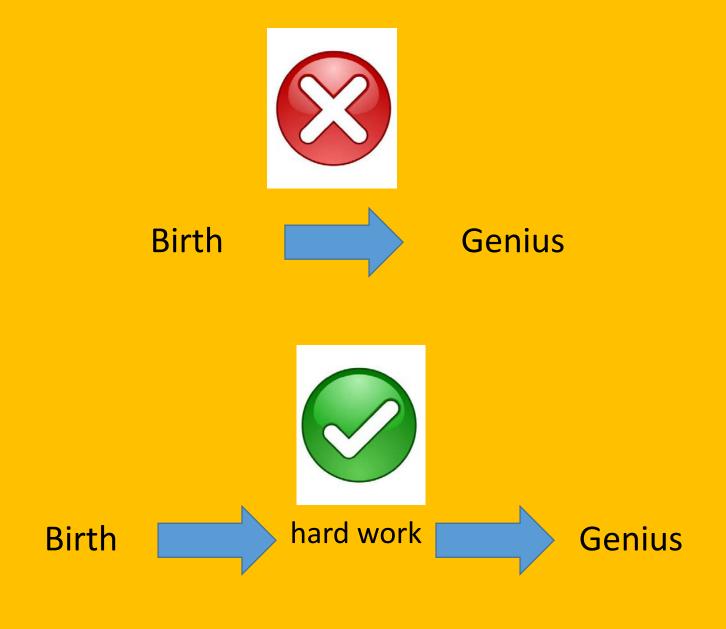

Benjamin Franklin advice given c. 1771 Sleep Evening: What good have I done to-day? Put things in their places. Supper. Music or diversion or conversation. Morning: Examination of the day. What good shall I do today? Rise, wash, and address Powerful Goodness! Contrive day's business, and take the resolution of the day; prosecute the Work present study, and breakfast Work Read, or look over my accounts, and dine.

Mozart's Genius 2

"People who think my art comes easily to me. I assure you, dear friend, nobody has devoted so much time and thought to composition as I. There is not a famous master whose music I have not industriously studied through many times

Get Busy Copying

"As Freud said, "When inspiration does not come to me, I go halfway to meet it.""

"If I stopped reading, I'd stop thinking. It's that simple."

"...when you stimulate your body, your brain comes alive in ways you can't simulate in a sedentary position..."

Prepare to be Lucky

You don't get lucky without preparation, and there's no sense in being prepared if you're not open to the possibility of a glorious accident."

Perfect Practice Makes perfect

Confidence is a trait that has to be earned honestly and refreshed constantly; you have to work as hard to protect your skills as you did to develop them

Without passion, all the skill in the world won't lift you above craft. Without skill, all the passion in the world will leave you eager but floundering. Combining the two is the essence of the creative life
